It would be better to roll out DNS over TLS as specified by RFC 7858, providing secure DNS for all system services, not just the browser, to avoid inconsistencies between the browser and host-based resolvers as well as support existing investment in enterprise DNS architecture.